Tree Lighting Friday Night Kicks Off Holiday Season

Santa Arrival By Parachute, Fair Saturday; 67th Annual Quincy Christmas Parade Sunday

By SCOTT JACKSON

Quincy will celebrate the start of the holiday season with a series of family-friendly events Friday, Saturday and Sunday, concluding with the 67th annual Christmas parade.

The fun starts Friday with the tree-lighting ceremony on the Hancock-Adams Common in front of City Hall in Quincy Center.

The fête, which lasts from 5 to 7 p.m., will include strolling Victorian carolers, ice sculptures, street performers, costumed characters and letter writing to Santa Claus. Free popcorn and hot chocolate will be served.

The Donna Marie children's puppet show starts at 5 p.m., the Quincy-North Quincy combined high school choir takes the stage at 5:45 p.m., and Mayor Thomas Koch — and a special guest — will light the trees at 6:15 p.m.

Santa's mail box will be placed at the Hancock-Adams Common for the event and will remain there throughout the holiday season.

Cottage Avenue in the former Hancock Lot. Attendees can also park in the Ross Lot on the Parkway.

On Saturday, Santa Claus will make his annual arrival into Quincy when he and his trusty elves airdrop onto Pageant Field, 1 Merrymount Pkwy, at noon. Revelers will have a chance to take a hayride around the field and meet and greet with various costumed characters while waiting for Santa and crew to touch down.

The city will also celebrate Fair Saturday — a global cultural movement — on Saturday. Quincy is participating in the event for the first time this weekend, and will become the first American city to do so.

Fair Saturday events will take place in various locations between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday. The complete list of events can be found online at quincy.gov/fairsaturday.htm. Charitable donations may be made to each performer's cause of choice.

The weekend concludes

QUINCY WILL celebrate the start of the holiday season Friday night with a tree-lighting ceremony on the Hancock-Adams Common in front of United First Parish Church and the James R. McIntyre Government Center (old City Hall) in Quincy Center. The celebration will take place from 5 to 7 p.m. and include strolling Victorian carolers, ice sculptures, street performers, costumed characters and letter writing to Santa. with Sunday's Christmas parade. The procession will begin at 12:30 p.m. at the intersection of Hancock Street and Hannon Parkway in Quincy Center and will follow Hancock Street for three miles to North Quincy High School.

"The Christmas parade is an annual tradition for so many Quincy families," Koch said. "The entire weekend has grown to help the community celebrate in the place we call home."

The theme for Sunday's parade is "Christmas Around the World." Parade organizers selected the theme, submitted by Dolly Di Pesa, from the list of 31 entries submitted by city residents as part of the annual theme contest. Di Pesa also submitted the winning theme last year.

As the theme winner, Di Pesa will have the chance to ride in the parade and will receive a plaque during the award ceremony at the end of the day.

The parade will include 16 area marching bands, floats, costumed characters and other traditional favorites.

Nine high school bands will take part in the marching band competition: Somerset Berkley, Quincy-North Quincy, Immaculate Heart of Mary, Acton-Boxborough, Burlington, Marblehead, Joseph Case, New Bedford and David Prouty.

Other bands participating in the parade include: New Magnolia, Boston Windjammers, Waltham American Legion, Worcester Sound and Light Calliope, Branches Steel Band, Boston Gaelic Column and the Shriners Clown Band.

At least nine floats will participate on Sunday: Magnet Community Health Center, Quincy Catholic Academy, Town River Yacht Club Junior Program, Quincy 400, The Quincy Foundation, Rotary Club of Quincy, Montilio's Baking Company, and the city of Quincy.

The Quincy Police Department's motorcycle unit and units from other communities will lead the parade. The Police and Fire Department's color guards will also march in the parade, along with color guards from various veterans' organizations and Massachusetts State Police.

Other Police Department units, including a high-speed boat, will take part in the procession. The Fire Department will have the honor once again to transport Santa Claus on Sunday.

The Salvation Army will collect money for its annual Red Kettle campaign along the parade. Volunteers for the Toys for Tots program will also be accepting donations.

Tessie the Green Monster, Wally's little sister, will participate in the Christmas parade for the first time this year. Other specialty units include longtime favorite Hallamore Clydesdales, a fire dancer, the Silver Dolphin Drill Team from Naval Submarine Base New London, Shriners clowns and various antique cars.

The homecoming king and queen from both city high schools will ride in the parade and cheerleaders from the two schools will march in it.

Students To Help Seniors With Snow Shoveling

By TOM GORMAN

Winter is fast approaching and snow will soon be falling. For some senior citizens, snow can mean being housebound. Thanks to a pilot program, Quincy Point elderly residents will be getting help clearing their walks and driveways from high school students.

During the school committee's Nov. 13 meeting, member Anthony Andronico informed his colleagues that a pilot program is being initiated this winter where Quincy High School seniors will be enlisted to shovel the walks and driveways of elderly homeowners in Quincy Point on school days that are cancelled due to a storm. The program, spearheaded by Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, will allow the students to earn community service hours.

"A few months ago, Councillor Croall, who represents the Quincy Point neighborhood, asked me if there was an opportunity to get high school students and pair them with an elderly individual in the neighborhood to shovel snow for them for community service hours," he said. "Councillor Croall thought it would be a good idea to pair seniors with seniors and so (the students) could earn commu-

Santa Has New Ride For Parade

Santa Claus will trade in his sleigh and reindeer for a brand new fire truck when he takes part in this year's annual Quincy Christmas parade on Sunday.

Santa will ride in style aboard the Quincy Fire Department's Ladder 2, which recently arrived in the city though it is not yet in service.

The truck was built by KME in Pennsylvania and is a tiller model, which features a second steering wheel in the rear of the vehicle, allowing the back to move independently of the front, giving the vehicle greater maneuverability.

The new truck will also have 500 cubic feet of storage space, two and a half times the storage of the 20-year-old model it will replace. The new tiller's aerial ladder is 101 feet.

"Quincy hasn't had a tiller in its fleet in over 15 years," said Deputy Chief Joseph Jackson.

"This type of vehicle has two drivers, one for the tractor, and one for the trailer. Its major benefits are unparalleled maneuverability and over 500 cubic feet of carrying capacity, housing everything from the jaws-of-life and forcible entry tools, to ice rescue sleds and a variety of ground ladders."

The new Ladder 2 will be assigned to the Wollaston firehouse on Beale Street alongside Engine 4.

"This truck will respond to every alarm of fire in the city of Quincy for its lifetime of service," Jackson said.

The City Council approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request to spend $1.5 million for the purchase and outfitting of the new tiller truck in 2018.

Thanksgiving Is About Thanking God

By PATRICK J. WALSH

After the first harvest of Plymouth colony in 1621, Governor Bradford established a special day of Thanksgiving for prayer and celebration. Other colonies later adopted this feast day.

Today it's a national holiday; a day unique to the American experience and perhaps the richest part of our spiritual heritage. For many Americans it contains more spiritual significance than Christmas--today so sadly debased by the forces of secularism and commerce. We are blessed Thanksgiving's custom and ceremony has survived.

The first Thanksgiving celebration probably took place in late September or early October. At that time of the year Plymouth harbor held a tremendous number of migrating birds easily felled. According to Nathan Philbrick in his recent book Mayflower, "the First Thanksgiving soon became an overwhelmingly Native celebration when Massasoit and a hundred Pokanokets (more than twice the entire English population of Plymouth) arrived at the settlement with five freshly killed deer." Though major cultural differences existed between the English Pilgrims and the Native Americans, both peoples understood the need of giving thanks to God. English and Indian were aware of a mystery in creation--within man and in nature.

How many of us have imagined what the First Thanksgiving was like? As a schoolboy drawing cornucopia horns and pilgrim hats I longed to live in those simpler times. And who does not have warm memories regarding family and friends at Thanksgiving season? Yet Thanksgiving properly understood rises above one's imaginative historical consciousness; the cutout cornucopia horns of school and supermarket and even reminiscences of friends and family, past and present. There has survived even down to our impoverished age a transcendent quality about this day.

Our age, in stark contrast to Pilgrims and Indians, believes that nature and man are mechanical things created by mere chance. We deny the mystery always found in the human being. Few venerate nature, rather we seek dominion over it. Attempts are being made to remake our given human nature into whatever whim we choose. We miss the drama of the human soul. For man is not a machine and understanding him or her begins with a reverence toward this passionate mystery.

Human beings attempt to reach the mystery of things through custom and ceremony. Both are a kind of opening of self to the eternal. At Thanksgiving the custom of thanking the creator corresponds to man's true nature as a dependent creature. And the other component of the word--giving--liberates men and women from themselves. Our consumer world of getting and having turns us inward sealing us like a tomb.

Poets and faithful priests appreciate mystery along with our need for custom and ceremony. William Butler Yeats put it marvelously in "A Prayer For My Daughter":

How but in custom and in ceremony
Are innocence and beauty born?
Ceremony's a name for the rich horn,
And custom for the spreading laurel tree.

So give thanks for the rich horn of Thanksgiving. Thanks be to God. It may be too cold to congregate under a spreading laurel tree Yeats mentions, but always remember that though we live in time, we belong to eternity. And pass the stuffing!

Patrick J. Walsh is a writer from Quincy, MA.

Keohane Funeral Home Helps Community Honor Grief During The Holidays

Candlelight Memorial Service Dec. 4 At Whipple Center, Weymouth

Usually a joyous and active time of year, the holidays can represent sadness and loneliness for some. This time of year can be especially difficult for those who have recently lost a loved one.

In recognition of this, Keohane Funeral Home invites all those in the community who have lost loved ones during this past year to join with others at their Candlelight Memorial Service to be held on Wednesday, Dec. 4 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Held at the Whipple Center, 182 Green St. in North Weymouth, the non-denominational service will be officiated by celebrant

Mary Gallagher.

"It can be helpful to spend time with others who are also grieving during the holiday season," said John Keohane, co-president of Keohane Funeral Home.

"Grief is an important part of the process of moving forward and we hope our Candlelight Memorial Service will help people to honor their grief as well as those they remember. "We are inviting the families we've served during the past year, but we extend the invitation to anyone who has lost a loved one and would like to attend," Keohane said.

Hancock, Adams Statues' Sculptor Receives Remembrance

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH recently presented Russian sculptor Sergey Eylanbekov with a framed remembrance of the Hancock Adams Common dedication day Sept. 8, 2018. Eylanbekov sculpted both the John Hancock and John Adams statues that anchor each side of the Hancock Adams Common. Eylanbekov is currently finishing 12 statues of Dwight Eisenhower, commissioned by the U.S. Government, showing the various stages of the general and president's life and career. The works will be part of a permanent memorial to Eisenhower that will open in Washington D.C. next May.

Quincy's Yesterdays

This Week
1980
39 Years Ago

New High School Quincy-Mass.

THIS IS A 1924 postcard showing the then new Quincy High School on Coddington Street. When this school opened the old high school on Hancock Street became Central Junior High School. This building was the only high school in Quincy at the time; North Quincy High wouldn't graduate its first seniors for another 10 years. This building cost $1,068,000 and had 40 large classrooms. It also featured a 1,500-seat auditorium, a gym that held two classes at once, a cafeteria large enough for half the students and a large modern library. Next door, Faxon Field, then a swamp, was being filled to build new athletic fields. Some 1,300 students and 58 teachers moved in here on opening day in September 1924. The building was soon pretty much at capacity and within a few years the city built three more junior high schools to accommodate a burgeoning school population. At the time, Quincy was the fastest growing city in the state. A new Quincy High School building was completed in 2010. The old school was demolished in 2013.

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH recently presented commendations to Peg O'Brien, Sandra Sines and Jean Ellard for the positive impact they each have made on behalf of the hundreds of dogs and cats that have passed through the doors of the Quincy Animal Shelter over the years. O'Brien, Sines and Ellard have served at the shelter since it opened in 1999. "Their service stands as a great example of what it means to be a dedicated community advocate," Koch said. Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy was also on hand to offer thanks to the many dedicated volunteers. The commendations were presented during the Q.A.S. annual Volunteer Appreciation Night held at the Tirrell Room. More coverage on Page 6. Photo courtesy of Lisa Aimola, City of Quincy

READERS FORUM

'Bigger' Quincy Better By Including All Citizens

By limiting its scope to politicians and business owners, the "Bigger, Better Quincy" articles, appearing in this and other local papers recently, did a great disservice to those who must live with the results. Delving deeper into how this unprecedented growth affects average citizens, forced daily to confront this city's growing pains, reveals a very different story.

Longtime single-family residents on streets bordering downtown - and in other neighborhoods as well - are living with the consequences of these intrusive high-end housing developments. Small lots are squeezed to accommodate towering buildings that block the light; gridlock traffic and lack of parking continue unabated; and loosening the rules for more construction will only intensify these problems.

The progress-at-all-costs folks are under the impression that nearly everyone within a short walking distance of the T will ride it (The Red Line? Seriously?), but people still need parking for their cars, family members' cars, visitors' cars - and most new developments allow for only 1 1/2 cars per unit.

With 46% of Quincy renters spending more than 30% of their income on rent, stoking an ever-increasing demand for affordable housing, high-end developers will provide a minimum of affordable units. So where does Mayor Koch suggest our minimum-wage workers and fixed-income seniors live? In contrast, Boston's Mayor Walsh has overseen the construction of 31,000 new housing units, with 60% reserved for lower income residents.

As the state promotes this highly touted Housing Choice Bill, which supposedly "allows communities...to permit and approve projects of their own choosing," those of us living in this "community" are all but ignored in city meetings. We see how this unchecked growth affects our quality of life and we want to be heard.

Quincy can do "bigger" much better by taking all its citizens into account.

Cost Of Prop. 2 1/2: Up To 400 City Jobs, $10M In School Funds

Proposition 2 1/2 may cost as many as 400 city employees their jobs - not including school personnel. And the School Department may lose as much as $10 million in its budget for Fiscal Year 1982.

Those are the grim figures that grew out of a presentation to the effects of Proposition 2 1/2 that is being given by Mayor Arthur Tobin to city officials and union heads.

The mayor said, after conferring with department heads over the weekend, that he prepared a list of about 112 positions that might have to be cut from the FY1982 budget.

Under Proposition 2 1/2, Quincy will have to reduce its property tax levy by 15% in 1982 and will lose 62 percent of its usual receipts from the auto excise tax.

Quincy Animal Shelter Celebrates Service, Volunteers

The Quincy Animal Shelter recently held its annual Volunteer Appreciation Dinner Nov. 3 held at the Tirrell Room.

Some 140 volunteers attended the event including Mayor Thomas Koch and Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy. The mayor presented a special commendation to Peg O'Brien, Sandra Sines and Jean Ellard in recognition of their 20 years of service to the shelter since it opened in 1999.

The dinner celebrates the work the volunteers do every day caring for the shelter's animals. This year was very special because it is the shelter's 20th anniversary. Service Recognition Awards are given to those who have volunteered for 5,10,15 and 20 years.

Also honored were those who go above and beyond for the animals with special awards. The Shelter Director's Award was presented to Kristen Kershner. The Presidents Award was given

ENC Symphonic Winds To Present Christmas/Winter Concert Dec. 6

The Symphonic Winds at Eastern Nazarene College, a community based concert band, will present their annual Christmas/Winter concert on Friday, Dec. 6th at 7:30 p.m.

The concert will be held in the Cove Fine Arts Center, located on Wendell Avenue across from the athletic fields. The Symphonic Winds is under the direction of Professor Stephen Bell, who formed this unique ensemble 17 years ago. The ensemble is comprised not only of ENC college students, but area community members and qualified high school students. Players come from many of the surrounding towns such as Weymouth, Hanover, Marshfield, Braintree, Scituate, Milton, Canton, Bridgewater, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and of course Quincy.

The program will consist of selections that incorporate a wide variety of musical styles, including Christmas selections, fanfares, concert marches, folk dances and popular medleys. Professor Bell stated that it is important to expose young players to the myriad of musical styles and to perform the works of great composers and arrangers. As an educator, Professor Bell chooses literature that will challenge the players and yet provide a great listening experience for concert attendees.

One of the special features will be a concert march penned by John Philip Sousa in 1915. "The Pathfinder of Panama" was dedicated to the Panama Canal and the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco, where Sousa's band was engaged for nine weeks. Bell commented that this particular work is a very exciting and tuneful piece that has gone unrecognized for years. Listeners will certainly recognize the Sousa style and panache associated with so many of his well-known works.

Tickets are available from the ensemble members or can be purchased online at <https://symphonicwinds.brownpapertickets.com>. Senior and students ticket prices are $5 each and adults are $10. A reception will follow the concert for audience and band members alike. Directions and tickets can be obtained by contacting the music office at 617-745-3517, week days, between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

East Congregational

Social

Church launched its "Reading Changes Lives" literacy initiative in 2014 in the belief that literacy is essential to equality and justice. As a complicated and broad social justice issue, literacy impacts other issues, including economic justice, gender inequality, criminal justice, public education, and racial justice.

East Church adopted the dormant school library at the Roosevelt K-8 School in Hyde Park and invested thousands of hours into revitalizing it. The library reopened with a grand gala in 2016, and East Church now provides volunteers to staff the library during class visits at the school every-other week.

"Reading Changes Lives" built one of the first two "Little Free Libraries" in Milton and has hosted numerous book swaps in town. Since 2016 the church has posted "Story Walks" in Crane Field and East Milton Square. Members also sponsor an annual Holiday Book Fair after Thanksgiving and distribute free books to children - "Trick or Treat for Books" - for Halloween on the church front lawn.

For more information, contact the church office at (617) 698-0270 or Rev. Shelly Davis at (617) 698-0229.

Questions After New Wollaston T Opens

I couldn't wait for the Wollaston station to re-open. It opened and then I waited for letters to the editor, posts to neighborhood sites, articles in the paper.

Why?

Well, most importantly, the matter of the escalators, which I really looked forward to. I guess it was too much to ask for one to go up and one to go down. But there are two. And where did they go? They went nowhere. The long one and the short one ended up on the top floor which looked down to the platform and a lovely view of the neighborhood and parking lot. So, you either had to take one of the elevators or stairs down to get to the platform.

I asked a local official why the escalators went nowhere, and the answer was to get to the other side of the platform. That sounds good, except there is only one platform. Whether you are going inbound or outbound you are on the same strip of land. And this local official even took a walk through on the day of the ribbon cutting.

Was there not an official during the planning, the updating, the ribbon cutting who actually questioned where these expensive escalators were going and why two elevators were needed for the smallest station on the Red Line? As a result, almost no one uses the escalators except for those who don't know any better.

It is now November and the enclosed bike rack is still not open. Some sort of very small temporary outside rack is there. Why is that?

And, lots of parking spaces are still being used for equipment - why?

And, the best part, when it rained hard a few weeks ago, the station flooded, just like the old station did.

Thanks, MBTA, thanks, local and state officials, for looking out for us. We keep paying and paying and paying.

Chicken Cutlets With Sour Cream

By MARIE

Sometimes when we cook chicken breast they tend to be dry if you don't use the right amount of seasonings and sauces.

Today's recipe for chicken cutlets with sour cream promises to be very moist and very easy to make. You won't be disappointed if you decided to make this chicken.

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees; lightly grease a 9 x 13 baking dish

1 cup sour cream (plain yogurt can be used also)

1 teaspoon garlic powder

1/2 teaspoon coarse black pepper

1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)

1 and 1/2 cups grated parmesan cheese
2 and 1/2 pounds of chicken breast sliced as thin as you can get them

Mix the sour cream, salt, pepper and 1 cup of parmesan cheese until well blended. Place chicken breast evenly in the prepared baking dish.

Spread sour cream mixture evenly over the chicken.

Then sprinkle with the rest of the parmesan cheese.

Bake for 25 to 30 minutes until bubbly.

Then, turn your oven to "broil" and broil for 2 to 3 minutes until tops of chicken are browned.

Pasta And Beans

By SUSIE

I grew up on pasta and beans, and my dad loved it with a bunch of pepper sprinkled on it (which of course would make him sneeze....but we got used to it!)

We all loved when our mom prepared this dish. Here is my recipe for it. Not as good as my moms (of course) but tasty just as well.

1 16-oz. can white beans (pea, navy, Great Northern), organic preferred

4 Tbsp. olive oil

1 onion, chopped fine

2 carrots, chopped

2 Tbsp. dried basil

1 tsp. dried oregano

2-3 cloves minced garlic

16-oz. can tomatoes

1 tablespoon tomato paste

1 cup chicken broth
1-2 tsp. salt
1/2 lb. rice elbow macaroni pepper
grated cheese

Directions

Drain beans, Heat olive oil in pan. Add onions, carrots, oregano, garlic and basil.

Cook until vegetables are wilted. Add tomatoes, paste, broth, salt, and pepper.

Cover and simmer for about 10 minutes, until the vegetables are tender.

Add the drained beans and simmer for another 10 minutes.

Meanwhile, cook and drain the macaroni. Toss with 1 Tbsp more olive oil and then mix with the bean sauce.

Enjoy and serve with a "sprinkling" of pepper and lots of parmesan.

St. Yves School Haiti Foundation Thanks Quincy Benefactors

By MARIE
DENISE FABIEN

The St Yves School Haiti Foundation was created after the earthquake which destroyed Haiti and St Yves School. It has been providing help to the needy children of Haiti for the past eight years.

The generous residents of Quincy and Dorchester have pioneered an amazing labor of love by helping rebuild the St Yves School. As of June 2019, the school welcomed approximately 300 children.

Today, Haitians are living in a very difficult situation.

Since Sept. 16, our children at St Yves School and in all the schools throughout Haiti cannot attend school due to political turmoil. Our children, our countrymen and women are dying in the streets of Haiti of hunger, of gun shots, and of random arrests while the world seems to keep a silent and indifferent attitude. My own mother, an elderly native of Haiti, went to the country in August hoping to distribute the 370 backpacks donated by Quincy residents. She was victim of robbers and had to be rescued and flee Haiti.

The people of Haiti are asking for food, shelter, housing, work the end of corruption in government and a new start with new leadership. Haitians want to unite themselves and take on their own future to bring positive change in their land.

The St. Yves School Foundation is grateful for

Turkey Tips For A Safe, Happy Thanksgiving

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Holiday gatherings are the largest meals many cooks prepare each year. Trying to accomplish this amazing feat accurately, especially the turkey brings a fair amount of pressure, whether a host is experienced with roasting a turkey or not.

Food safety is probably not the initial thing you think about when planning a holiday dinner. But to keep your gathering from being memorable in the wrong way, it's important to protect your guests from food-borne illnesses. Follow these tips to make sure your holiday meal is both delicious and safe to serve.

Steps to follow before cooking a turkey:

- Read labels carefully. Temperature labels show if the bird is fresh or frozen. If you plan to serve a fresh turkey, purchase it no more than two days before the holiday.
- Purchase two thermometers: a refrigerator thermometer to ensure the turkey is stored at 41 °F or slightly below and a food thermometer to make sure the cooked turkey reaches a safe 165 °F.

- Thaw the turkey by using the microwave, the running cold water method, or the refrigerator. The refrigerator method is USDA recommended. A frozen turkey is safe indefinitely, but a thawing turkey must defrost at a safe temperature. Allocate 24 hours per 5 pounds to defrost in the refrigerator. When the turkey is left out at room temperature for more than two hours, its temperature can creep into the danger zone between 41°F and 135°F, where disease causing bacteria can grow rapidly.

Steps to follow when cooking a turkey:

- Wash hands with warm water and soap for 20 seconds before touching any food to prevent the spread of many types of infection and illness. Bacteria from raw poultry can contaminate anything that it touches. Thoroughly wash your hands, utensils, and work surfaces to prevent the spread of bacteria to your food and family.

- Do not wash the turkey. This only spreads pathogens onto kitchen surfaces. The only way to kill bacteria that causes foodborne illness is to fully cook the turkey.

- Keep raw turkey separated from all other foods at all times.

- Use separate cutting boards, plates, and utensils when handling raw turkey to avoid cross-contamination. Wash items that have touched raw meat with warm soap and water, or place them in a dishwasher.

- Cook the turkey until it reaches a minimum temperature of 165 °F, as measured by a food thermometer. Check the turkey's temperature by inserting the thermometer in three places: the thickest part of the breast, the innermost part of the thigh, and the innermost part of the wing. Cook stuffing in a casserole dish to make sure it is thoroughly cooked. If you stuff the turkey, do so just before cooking. Use a food thermometer to make sure the stuffing's center reaches 165°F. Bacteria can survive in stuffing that has not reached 165°F, and possibly cause food poisoning. Let the turkey stand 20 minutes before removing all stuffing from the cavity and carving the meat.

- Keep guests with sticky fingers out of the kitchen. Holidays occur during cold and flu season, which further compounds the fact that about half of all people have staph aureus bacteria on their hands, which can cause illness.

Steps to follow when consuming leftover holiday food:

- Refrigerate leftovers within two hours to prevent bacteria from growing on the food. Clostridium perfringens is the second most common bacterial cause of food poisoning. Outbreaks occur most often in November and December, and appear to be related to holiday meals.

- Divide leftovers into smaller portions. Refrigerate or freeze in covered shallow containers for quicker cooling. Store leftovers in shallow pans or containers to decrease cooling time, this prevents the food from spending too much time at unsafe temperatures (between 41 °F to 135 °F).

- Discard any turkey, stuffing, and gravy left out at room temperature longer than 2 hours; 1 hour in temperatures above 90 °F.

- Do not store stuffing inside a leftover turkey. Remove the stuffing from the turkey, and refrigerate the stuffing and the meat separately.

- Avoid consuming leftovers that have been left in the refrigerator for longer than 3 or 4 days. Use the freezer to store leftovers for longer periods of time.

- Keep leftovers in a cooler with ice or frozen gel packs if the food is traveling home with a guest who lives more than two hours away.

- If freezing leftovers, use within 2 to 6 months for best quality.

Reheating Your Turkey:

Cooked turkey may be eaten cold or reheated.

- Set the oven temperature no lower than 325 °F.

- Reheat turkey to an internal temperature of 165 °F. Use a food thermometer to check the internal temperature.

- To keep the turkey moist, add a little broth or water and cover.

In the Microwave Oven:

- Cover your food and rotate it for even heating. Allow standing time.

- Check the internal temperature of your food with a food thermometer for a full 2 minutes to make sure it reaches a minimum of 165 °F.

Finally, be careful with eggs. Many eggnog recipes call for uncooked eggs, you need to use pasteurized eggs or cook the egg yolks to be sure you kill any potential salmonella bacteria. Eggs should be kept refrigerated until ready for use and always cook egg products to 160 degrees.

Have a Safe and Happy Holiday!

Massachusetts Dental Society Shares Flu Season Tips

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) reports the United States is seeing more cases of the flu than is typical for this time of year, with 30 states already seeing flu activity – including Massachusetts. According to experts, when influenza is off to an early start, it can sometimes mean a more severe flu season.

While the CDC recommends a yearly flu vaccine as the first and most crucial step in protecting against influenza and its potentially serious complications, it's also important to take everyday preventive actions to stop the spread of germs.

"By following some basic precautions, you and your family can stay physically healthy this season, while also maintaining good oral health," said Massachusetts Dental Society (MDS) President Janis Moriarty, DMD.

Washing your hands frequently during any time of the year is important. But the MDS recommends that you also practice good hand hygiene when it comes to brushing and flossing your teeth.

"Germs on your hands can easily be transmitted to your toothbrush and then to your mouth," Dr. Moriarty said. "It's important to wash your hands before and after brushing your teeth and flossing. Most people don't realize that viruses and bacteria can live on your toothbrush."

According to the CDC, the flu virus can live on moist surfaces for 72 hours.

"Since toothbrushes are breeding grounds for bacteria, they should be kept isolated from other brushes, as well as surfaces that touch other brushes, like toothbrush holders and bathroom cups," Dr. Moriarty added. "And, of course, you should never share your toothbrush, but this is especially true when you are sick."

The chances of re-infecting yourself after an illness are low, unless your immune system is severely compromised.

"You should be replacing your toothbrush about every three months," Dr. Moriarty said. "But, if you have any doubts, you may want to consider tossing your brush and getting a new one after you've been sick."

If you do get sick this cold and flu season, the MDS encourages three simple ways to care for your mouth:

1) Avoid cough drops with sugar or ingredients such as fructose or corn syrup. Sugar helps fuel cavity-causing bacteria, so sucking on sugar-filled cough drops can be as bad as sucking on candy.

2) Drink plenty of water. When it comes to staying hydrated, water is best. It will help keep your saliva flowing and prevent dry mouth. Sports drinks may be helpful for replenishing electrolytes, but moderation is key since many contain high quantities of sugar.

3) If you have a stomach flu that leads to vomiting, consider waiting to brush your teeth. Brushing right away can rub stomach acids all over your teeth's enamel. Instead, swish with water or mouth rinse and spit, then brush about 30 minutes later.

Fair Saturday Quincy Features 14 Events; 100 Artists, Performers

The City of Quincy has a long tradition of ushering in the winter holiday season with a series of special events on the weekend after Thanksgiving. On this last year of the current decade, the city's line-up of holiday festivities will include an exciting global newcomer, Fair Saturday.

Fair Saturday is an innovative cultural festival celebrating arts and culture in support of social issues and the organizations that help tackle them. Taking place on the Saturday after Black Friday every year, Fair Saturday aims to create a positive cultural and social impact in the communities where it takes place. Originating in Bilbao, Spain in 2014, the Fair Saturday's emphasis upon local arts and culture as agent for positive social change has propelled its rapid rise around the world. In 2018 more than 600 events occurred in over 100 cities worldwide. Jordi Albareda, founder of Fair Saturday, stated "It is a day to change the world through arts and culture."

For Quincy Mayor Thomas Koch, the mission of Fair Saturday was a natural fit with the spirit of the city's holiday celebrations.

"Thanksgiving weekend is a time of celebration in the City of Quincy," Koch said. "Bringing the intention of Fair Saturday to our city on that Saturday offers families a day to appreciate new arts and cultural events and contribute to a variety of local charities in the process. What a wonderful intention at the start of the holiday season."

The integration of Fair Saturday into Quincy's holiday festivities gives both local and south shore residents the opportunity to have a truly hometown holiday experience at the start of a busy holiday season.

The weekend kicks off with the tree lighting on the Hancock-Adams Common on Friday from 5-7 p.m. On Saturday, Santa parachutes in for a visit at Pageant Field at noon, and Fair Saturday's arts and culture events kick off at 11 a.m. run through the evening hours at various locations in and around Quincy Center.

The weekend caps off with the 67th annual Christmas Parade along Hancock Street on Sunday from 12:30-3:30 p.m.

This year, Quincy is being recognized by the Fair Saturday Foundation as the first official U.S. city to partner with and to participate in the international arts and cultural movement. As a part of that recognition, a video of the Quincy Choral Society singing a traditional song from the Basque region of Spain will be projected in the 10,000 seat Bilbao Arena in Bilbao Spain to kick off the global Fair Saturday movement for 2019.

On this side of the Atlantic, the City of Quincy and six local arts and culture organizations will present 14 events, involving over 100 artists and performers at six different venues in and around Quincy Center between 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 30th.

For more information about the Fair Saturday movement and the events taking place during Fair Saturday Quincy 2019, visit the Fair Saturday web page at www.fairsaturday.org and click on the "Quincy" link. You can also visit the Atrium at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St. in Quincy, home-base for Fair Saturday 2019, where you can find flyers and information about the events.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Does Paying Social Security Payroll Tax Increase My Benefit?

By RUSSELL GLOOR

AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: After losing my job of 31 years in 2013 at 63 years of age, I decided to start drawing my Social Security benefits. In 2015 I started a part time job, which I still have. In January 2020 I will fully retire. I have been paying Social Security taxes for the last 4 years without receiving any increase in my Social Security benefit amount. Can I therefore claim an increase in benefits, or even a refund of those taxes? If not, is there anything that I can do? Signed: Overtaxed Senior

Dear Overtaxed Senior: I'm afraid it doesn't work that way, nor is there anything you can do to get either an increase in your benefit amount from (or a refund of) those FICA payroll tax contributions you made to Social Security while you were working and also collecting Social Security benefits. Everyone who works and earns - even those who are collecting Social Security benefits - must pay the Social Security FICA payroll tax. But paying that payroll tax doesn't entitle you to a benefit increase. The FICA tax you pay doesn't get credited to a personal account for you; rather it goes into the Social Security general fund to help pay benefits to all current beneficiaries.

Social Security's basic premise since inception in 1935 is that current workers pay for current beneficiaries. Today, there are about 175 million workers contributing to pay benefits to over 63 million beneficiaries. And actually, the ratio of workers to beneficiaries has been declining for years, which is largely responsible for Social Security's current financial issues. For example, in 1950 there were about 16.5 workers for each Social Security beneficiary; today there are about 2.4 workers per beneficiary.

As I said, everyone who works and earns must pay the Social Security FICA tax, but the FICA taxes you pay do not increase your benefit and there is no refund of FICA taxes for those already collecting Social Security benefits. Once you claimed your Social Security benefit, the amount was set and will only change as a result of COLA (cost of living adjustment) increases, or if any of your current/recent earnings are more than any of the inflation-adjusted earnings in the 35 year lifetime work record used to originally compute your benefit. Social Security uses the highest earning 35 years in your lifetime work history (adjusted for inflation) to compute your benefit, and if you don't have earnings in at least 35 years they put in zeros to make a full 35 years. In that case, any current earnings you have would replace any zero earning years in your 35-year history which would slightly increase your benefit. But except for those circumstances, your benefit won't change simply because you are paying Social Security FICA payroll taxes while you are working.

Think of it this way: The Social Security benefits you are now receiving are being paid for by those Americans currently working, and that will continue even after you retire completely in January. And, you'll continue to get those Social Security benefits for the rest of your life, from the payroll taxes paid by those still working.

During the month of December, the Wotiz Gallery of the Milton Public Library will be graced by the photographs of Milton resident William Grant.

Grant is a passionate photographer who has been largely self-taught. He enjoys photographing rural scenes in Quebec and New Hampshire and spent some time in 2019 on an exchange in France where he was able to photograph parts of Southwest France. He particularly enjoys using a slow shutter speed to capture more artistic perspectives.

This display will show primarily color images of landscapes and cityscapes, showing his careful observation of these scenes.

Outside of photography,

Grant enjoys hockey and plays in the Milton town travel league. He is also an avid baseball player, playing on the Milton team in Cooperstown in 2018.

This young photographer was born in London but has resided in Milton since 2011, and he is currently an 8th grader at Milton Academy. The exhibit will be on display from Dec. 1-28.

The Milton Public Library is located at 476 Canton Ave., and for more information about applying to display in the gallery, contact Jean Hlady, Head of Adult Services/Reference, by Email at jhlady@ocln.org or by calling the Reference Department at (617) 698-5757, x. 3.

Students To Help Seniors With Snow Shoveling

nity service hours on those days they have off from snow."

Andronico explained the district's community service coordinator will compile a list of both students and elderly residents interested in participating in the program.

"The community service coordinator will work to pair individuals on those days (the students) are off so (the senior citizens) will have a clear driveway and be safe and be able to get out of their house when they need to," said Andronico.

Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro noted the pilot program will be in Quincy Point only this year. He added parents will also play a role in the initiative.

"Parents, of course, will be part of the program," he said. "We will need to get permission from parents (for their children's participation) and for them to get the kids out of bed and get them to shovel."

Committee Vice Chairwoman Emily Lebo supported the program, but, cautioned that the elderly residents' privacy must be protected.

"Sounds like a great program," she said. "But I think if we are brokering this, we must be very careful about CORIs (criminal background checks) and we making sure the kids don't go into the homes of these people. There are some really tight restrictions on anything we are brokering."

DeCristofaro said restrictions would be written up and provided to students.

Andronico praised both Croall and the superintendent for working on the initiative that will benefit both the students and Quincy Point's seniors.

In another matter, Andronico updated the committee on the school department's website makeover that is underway and that a public meeting will be held the first week of December to provide details and allow input from parents. The date of the meeting has not yet been finalized.

"The website initiative is going pretty well and is still on track for a roll-out in January," he said. "We've received a few questions from parents and my colleagues on the school committee on what is the website going to look like, how's the roll-out going, and who is going to be responsible for updating the website."

Andronico said it was decided to hold a public meeting where the vendor, who is building the website, would give a formal presentation "so the public and my colleagues can have a better understanding of where things are and have meaningful input to what the final website will look like."

The new website is slated to have better navigation, be more informative and user-friendly than the existing site.

By CATHY EBLING

At Thanksgiving, The National Society of Colonial Dames in The Commonwealth of Massachusetts and members of its Quincy Homestead committee would like to express publicly their sincerest thanks to the many wonderful people of Quincy and beyond who have supported the effort to preserve and share this historic c.1680 site.

The Quincy Homestead and its volunteer staff recognize the energy, the thoughtfulness, and the generous gifts that it has received throughout the year. It is gratifying to reflect on the many activities and accomplishments achieved as well as the fun we had working with so many who have gladly and generously shared their time and talents to the Homestead. We acknowledge the truth in the adage "it takes a village."

Thank you to the enthusiastic volunteers in the neighborhood, Friends of Butler Pond, and neighbors who come by to help with gardening and general cleanup of the grounds, and those longtime dedicated neighbors who keep a watchful eye on the grounds. You know who you are, our hats are off to you with many thanks for your continuing friendship.

New Downtown Garage Expected To Open This Week

By SCOTT JACKSON

The new 712-car garage located on the former Hancock Lot in Quincy Center should be open this week.

William Geary, Mayor Thomas Koch's special counsel for downtown redevelopment, said National Grid was set to install a new transformer to provide a permanent power supply to the structure last Saturday.

"Most of the delay has been waiting for National Grid," Geary said in a phone interview on Nov. 22.

After National Grid brings power to the garage, Geary said the company responsible for installing an elevator on site would be able to do so. The city's Inspectional Services Department has also begun its evaluation of the structure in preparation for its opening.

"We are shooting to have it open and operating by Thanksgiving," Geary said.

Drivers will be able to access the garage via Cottage Avenue, which has been recently repaved, when it opens.

The new garage will have room for 712 vehicles. It will have 130 parking spaces in its basement, 78 spaces on the ground level, 125 spaces on the second floor, 131 spaces each on the third and fourth floors, and 117 spaces on the roof. Sixteen of the spaces will be handicap accessible, and some of the spaces will have charging stations for electric vehicles.

Between one-fourth and one-third of the total spaces will be leased to developers Peter O'Connell and LBC Partners for tenants who move into new residential buildings on either side of the garage. O'Connell is constructing the 15-story, 140-unit Chestnut Place building, which is set to open in July 2020, while LBC's 171-unit Nova Residences opened earlier this fall.

Future developments on the lot will be required to provide their own parking, city officials have said.

The city is spending $46.6 million to construct the new garage and create new civic space that will be located between the garage and surrounding buildings. Funding for the work was included in an $80 million district improvement financing bond the City Council approved in June 2017.

Construction of the new garage began last year after the city closed the Hancock

Lot, which contained some 500 spaces.

The city also plans to construct a new parking garage in the vicinity of the Parkingway on the opposite side of Hancock Street. City officials have said that garage would be built to hold as many vehicles as the one on the Hancock Lot, if not more.

Independent Prosecutor For McCallum Case

Bennett served as the secretary of the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security during Gov. Charlie Baker's first term in office. Before working under Baker, Bennett had been the first assistant district attorney in Worcester County and prior to that had been a prosecutor in Middlesex and Suffolk Counties.

As a prosecutor in Middlesex County, Bennett was on the trial team that won first degree murder convictions against Neil Entwistle, the British man who had been accused of killing his wife and daughter inside their home in Hopkinton. That case is one of several high profile homicides Bennett has prosecuted.

Morrissey said Bennett would have full autonomy as an independent special assistant district attorney; the appointment of an independent prosecutor removes any involvement in the ongoing decision-making process from the Norfolk District Attorney's Office and puts it directly in the hands of the independent counsel.

"My purpose here is to remove any question or appearance of conflict while placing the case with a prosecutor of extensive experience and skill," Morrissey said in a statement.

"The independent prosecutor statute exists to avoid both actual conflict of interest or the appearance or perception of conflict of interest, at any stage in a prosecution or investigation," he added.

"There has been no single precipitating factor in my decision to assign this to an independent prosecutor. While there is no direct conflict of interest, I have grown increasingly aware of the perception, particularly within the Squantum community, that public confidence will be reinforced with this matter placed with an independent prosecutor."

Morrissey thanked the Massachusetts State Police detectives who conducted interviews and investigation across several months.

"This matter was brought through the grand jury process by one of my most experienced and senior prosecutors and I feel fortunate that the prosecution will be undertaken by an attorney of Daniel Bennett's caliber and experience," Morrissey said.

The two brothers charged in connection with the fight outside the Nickerson Post, including the man accused of fatally striking Christopher McCallum, were arraigned Nov. 6 in Norfolk Superior Court. Both pleaded not guilty and are due back in court for pre-trial conferences Jan. 10.

Matthew Potter, age 36 of Weymouth, was indicted for manslaughter of McCallum, two counts of indecent assault and battery on a second person and simple assault of a third person.

The maximum sentence for a manslaughter conviction is 20 years in state prison.

Steven Potter, age 34 of Boston, was indicted on two counts of assault and one count of assault and battery causing serious bodily injury. His charges are not related to McCallum's death, prosecutors said, but to two other victims from the same incident.

McCallum, 44, of Bridgewater died Jan. 28 after being taken off life support. He was rushed to Boston Medical Center around 1 a.m. on Jan. 27 after he was found bleeding and unconscious outside the Nickerson American Legion Post on Moon Island Road after police responded to a report of a large disorder.

An autopsy determined McCallum's death was a homicide caused by blunt force trauma.

McCallum grew up on Deerfield Street in Squantum and was a 1992 graduate of North Quincy High School. He was captain of the Red Raiders football and hockey teams his senior year and was inducted into the Quincy-North Quincy High Football Hall of Fame in 2016.

McCallum was survived by his wife Kathy and their sons Ryan, Michael and Christopher.

Quincy Choral Society Performance Celebrates Fair Saturday Nov. 30

As part of a worldwide movement, Quincy Choral Society will participate in Fair Saturday Nov. 30, a global effort that aims to create a positive social impact.

The festival is held yearly on the last Saturday of November. Artists and cultural organizations from around the world get together with only one requirement: to support a social cause of their choice through their performance.

Led by interim Music Director Sarah Labrie, Quincy Choral will perform at the James R. McIntyre Government Center (old City Hall) in the Great Hall at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 30. The performance is free of charge, but donations will be accepted for DOVE, which provides support and services for victims of domestic violence.

Fair Saturday originated in Bilbao, Spain, and now has participants in England, Scotland, and Wales, Finland, Peru, Portugal, and The Netherlands among other countries. Quincy is the first city in the United States to participate, with Quincy Choral as the first artistic group to participate.

In addition, Fair Saturday founder Jordi Albareda taught the chorus "Agur Jaunak," a Basque song of respect and welcome or farewell. Conducted by Music Director Joshua W. Rohde, the chorus then made a video recording of its performance, which will open the festivities on Nov. 30 at Bilbao Stadium, attended by approximately 8,000 people, and will be shared worldwide as well.

Quincy Choral Society was founded in 1981 for the purpose of bringing musical excellence to the South Shore and the world. The chorus performs locally and has performed in music festivals in Washington, D.C., in Europe, at Carnegie Hall as part of the Masterworks Series, and most recently in Montreal and Quebec. In September 2018, the Chorus participated in the dedication of the Hancock - Adams Common.

O'Donnell Welcomes Chinese Delegation

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell recently hosted a delegation from the Chinese Ministry of Natural Resources, Bureau of Natural Resources Registration. O'Donnell provided the delegation, headed by Yang Zhuhui, Deputy Director of the Bureau of Natural Resources Registration, with an overview of land document recording procedures at the Registry.

"No matter what the level of government, having an open dialogue with a foreign country improves cooperation and understanding between the parties," O'Donnell said. "As the Bureau of Natural Resources Registration ramps up their land registration system, they hopefully will be helped by what they learned and observed here at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds when it comes to our best practices."

A lively question and answer session followed with O'Donnell and the Chinese delegation. "Some of the questions touched on issues of property ownership, including property development, zoning restrictions and how they affect property development here in the states, and recording of public land documents dealing with highways and water," noted the Register.

At the end of the event, O'Donnell, representing the Registry of Deeds and the citizens of Norfolk County, was presented with a gift of Chinese silk tapestry.

"I want to thank the Chinese delegation for their kindness in presenting this wonderful gift to Norfolk County," O'Donnell said. "We were honored that they chose to learn from us. I wish the delegation all the best as they begin the process of creating a land document recording system."

Coming Home

By JULIANN GALLIGAN

With the holidays rapidly approaching, it is common to reflect on memories and traditions your family and friends have had or are choosing to continue. A majority of us have a family home that comes to mind where said traditions take place. Are those traditions still in the same place? Or are the same traditions being held but in a newer place than where you grew up?

Are you now the host? Is your home now the family home?

Are you "coming home" for Thanksgiving this year? Is often something we hear or even ourselves may say to family or friends that have moved away.

It is the season of Homecoming, when everyone comes "home" for the holidays. When you think about it, I'm sure some of your first holiday memories were at your grandmothers big family home with lots of relatives stopping by then years down the road, the same happened at your parents house, which became the family home and your grandparents moved into a small condo or assisted living or they downsized and before you know it, it's you hosting and have the now "family home".

I personally think traditions are important because they bring and keep families together and connected. And these traditions need a place to be held right? The places you live and what kind of home you live in goes with each stage of your life. When you're a child, you live in the big family home then you go off to college, then you move into an apartment or buy a condo or have roommates, then once you're married, you buy a house then you raise your family in that house or buy a bigger one until the kids grow up and move out and then you become empty nesters and you are faced with the decision of either staying where you are or downsize or if you're healthy enough, assisted living or a 55+ community. It is all based on individual wants and needs but where you call home is an attachment of wherever it is you are in life. And its the circle of life for homes. A house is more than a house. What happens inside those walls is called life. The smells, the tastes, the sounds. Whenever I smell cinnamon, I am time warped into my grandmothers kitchen. The second pumpkin pie touches my tastebuds, I am transported to my mothers dining room or if I hear a certain song, I am back in the apartment that my two

Wreaths Across America's Christine Cugini Commended

This Year's Initiative Set For Dec. 14

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors presented a commendation to Christine Cugini, the Navy veteran who led the Wreaths Across America initiative in Quincy last year and will do so again this December.

Volunteers placed some 3,200 wreaths on the graves of veterans interred at Mount Wollaston Cemetery last year.

The initiative is expanding this year to include all of the 7,300 veterans buried across the city's seven cemeteries. National Wreaths Across America Day is Dec. 14 this year, and volunteers will begin placing the wreaths at 11:15 a.m. that morning.

Cugini received the commendation during the council's meeting on Nov. 18.

"It's a true honor and a very special moment for me standing here in front of you receiving this award," she said while accepting the commendation. "The work that I have done and will continue to do while remembering and honoring our veterans is something that is very close to my heart."

Before bringing the program to Quincy, Cugini attended the Wreaths Across America Day event in Arlington National Cemetery in 2017.

"It was a day that changed my life," she said. "I came back to the hotel that night after a day of laying wreaths on our veterans' graves and I researched how to bring this to Quincy."

Cugini said one quote she heard while at the 2017 event underscores the significance of remembering the nation's veterans.

"Remember this, in truth a person dies twice. Once when he stops breathing and the second time when someone mentions his or her name for the last time," Cugini said. "We say the names of our fallen out loud to make sure they will never be forgotten."

"Thank you for listening for a minute to me," she added, "and for all the help the council and the residents of Quincy have given to Wreaths Across America. We're going to continue to do this and get better each year."

Council President Brad Croall presented the commendation to Cugini.

"Laying of wreaths at all veterans' graves during the holiday season brings the community together to remember all those who have served and sacrificed for this great nation," he said.

"As the program enters its second year, we wish you continued success on your mission to remember the fallen, honor those who have served and teach our children the value of freedom."

International Supermarket To Replace Big Y

By SCOTT JACKSON

A new supermarket offering a variety of goods, including international food, is set to move into the North Quincy retail space previously occupied by Big Y early next year.

The Board of License

Commissioners on Nov. 19 granted a common victualler license to 99 Ranch Market for the location at 475 Hancock St. Joseph Lee, an executive with the company, said the new store could open as soon as mid-January.

The new grocer is also in the process of purchasing the retail beer and wine license Big Y had for the North Quincy location. Additional approval from the board would be required before beer and wine could be sold in the store.

99 Ranch Market is a California-based chain of supermarkets that was founded by a Taiwanese immigrant in 1984 and now operates more than 50 stores in the United States. The company's locations are primarily on the West Coast, but it has expanded in recent years to the East Coast. The North Quincy store will be the chain's first in Massachusetts.

Lee called the store an international supermarket.

"We position ourselves as an international supermarket," he said. "We have different ethnic products. We have many we call American products, which all the residents in Quincy need."

The space inside the supermarket will be largely unchanged from its time as a Big Y, Lee said.

"The location is still good," he said. "Everything is still pretty good the way it is."

The site at 475 Hancock St. was home to Big Y from September 2016 until August, when the Springfield-based company closed the store, saying it could not negotiate a lease extension with the property owner.

It had been a Hannaford supermarket prior to Big Y moving in; the North Quincy location was one of eight stores Big Y purchased from Hannaford following the merger of Hannaford's parent company with the parent company of Stop & Shop.

At the time of the closure, Big Y said it was looking for a new location in Quincy or other nearby communities.

In other business on Nov. 19, the Board of License Commissioners allowed the transfer of the all-alcohol license held by Long Chuan Garden to Wei Shu Wu Hot Pot, which will be located at 47-49 Billings Rd.

Ying Huang, the owner of the new restaurant, said it is a franchise brand from China. It will offer hot pot and other Chinese cuisine.

The restaurant will have room for 80 patrons inside and will be allowed to open from 11 a.m. to 1 a.m. seven days a week.

Holiday Music Dec. 7 At Crane Main Library

The public is invited to stop by the atrium of the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy, to enjoy the unique sounds of the Chrysalis Trio in a casual performance.

The group will be playing familiar holiday music from 3 to 4 p.m. and welcome questions and conversation about their music.

Chris Robins and Sally Davenport play the oboe, and Chris Shortall is on bassoon. They met during practice for other musical groups and decided to take a chance at forming an all double-reed woodwind group, despite not knowing how this rare arrangement of sounds would turn out. They've previously performed in towns around the South Shore, including at Quincy Porchfest.

On Sunday, Nov. 17, at approximately 11:20 a.m., Officer Sweetland and other officers were dispatched to the area of the strip mall on Granite Street after a caller reported that a male was "beating a dog."

Upon arrival, Officer Sweetland was approached by two females in a vehicle, who stated they were the callers. They said they saw a puppy unleashed in the street and a male pick up the puppy by the skin on its back and then hit the puppy over and over. She rolled down her window and yelled to him to stop hitting the puppy. He came at her vehicle in a fast walk while yelling at them. She said she told him that it was animal abuse and the suspect responded by angrily asking her what she was going to do about it.

He then walked to the front of her vehicle, then to the passenger side so she rolled down the window and again warned him to stop hitting the puppy. He yelled back, "If I want to hit my dog I will" and then hit the puppy again. The puppy was still yelping. He then said, "Wait here. I am going to get my girlfriend to come here and beat you up." The male then began walking away, but stopped briefly to call her derogatory names. The witness stated she believed that the suspect lived in a nearby multi-unit apartment. Officer Sweetland checked the apartment building to no avail.

At approximately 2 p.m., Officer Sweetland was dispatched to the police station lobby to investigate a complaint of harassment. This turned out to be the female witness who reported the animal abuse incident. She stated she was outside of her residence (which was not far away from where the suspect's apartment) and observed the suspect with a female passenger in a white vehicle drive by her three times while glaring at her. She added the vehicle drove by very slow which she interpreted as intentional as retaliation against her or her property.

She obtained the registration of the vehicle that the two were in, which came back to a white vehicle from Dorchester. Using the department in house name system, it showed that the owner of the vehicle resided in the apartment building in question. Officer Sweetland was joined by Officers Cleary, Anti-Crime Officers Lanergan and Dougan to locate the suspect at the apartment and check on the puppy's condition.

A female opened the apartment door and identified herself with the last name the same as the owner of the suspect vehicle. She was holding a puppy in her arms matching the description provided by the witness. The puppy looked unharmed. Officer Sweetland inquired if there were any other dogs in the apartment and she stated no. When asked if there were any males in the apartment, she said her boyfriend was in the back room, so the officers went inside and found him standing in the closet area allegedly doing laundry. Oddly, he was sweating profusely.

The male was placed into handcuffs and advised of his Miranda rights, which he stated he understood. He was advised of the animal abuse incident and quickly denied hitting the dog. He stated the dog was off leash and got away from him so he grabbed him to prevent it from running into the street. When asked if he was approached by anyone who was concerned about the welfare of the dog, the male said a woman was yelling at him and he said he told her he was training the dog.

When asked if he charged at her vehicle, the male said he did not. The male, a 29-year-old Dorchester resident, was transported to the station and charged with animal cruelty and intimidation of a witness.

2020 CENSUS GUIDELINES AND SCAMS:

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the U.S. Census Bureau are working together to protect the public against census scams. This coming March the Census Bureau will mail out (and, in some areas, hand deliver) invitations to participate in the 2020 Census. All forms should be delivered by April 1st. You can respond online, by phone, or by mail.

The Census Bureau's responsibility is to count every person living in the United States. Starting in May 2020, census takers will start visiting homes that haven't responded to make sure everyone is counted. If you are not home or can't come to the door, the census taker will come back up to six times. Each time, they will leave a door hanger with a phone number so you can call to schedule a visit. The census questionnaire asks how many people are in the home at the time you complete the form; their sex, age, race, ethnicity; their relationships to one another; phone number; and whether you own or rent the home.

New Interim President Takes Over At Quincy College

Board Of Governors Appoint Dr. Daniel M. Asquino

Dr. Daniel M. Asquino has begun his new role as the interim president at Quincy College.

Asquino began his tenure at the city-owned school on Nov. 18.

He was appointed to the temporary position by the Quincy College Board of Governors on October 23. The Board of Governors, which has been working with a search committee to find a permanent president, selected Asquino, a veteran state community college administrator and educator while a permanent president is sought.

"Familiar with the nuances of higher education, Dr. Asquino will surely be an asset to Quincy College as it navigates the transition of leadership and administration, culminating in the appointment of a president," Paul Barbadoro, chairman of the Board of Governors, said in a statement.

"We are grateful to Dr. Asquino for his leadership as an established educator and administrator who has spent most of his career working in the Massachusetts public college system."

Asquino has a legacy of community college leadership, having served as president at Mount Wachusett Community College in Gardner for 30 years. Under his leadership, Mount Wachusett grew exponentially in size, stature and academic services.

In his role at Quincy College, Asquino will lead the Quincy and Plymouth campuses, which serve students from the greater Boston area, across the South Shore and more than 121 countries.

"It is my pleasure to serve as interim president of Quincy College," Asquino said in a statement. "I am fully committed to the mission of a small college and public higher education. I look forward to lending my administrative skills and academic talents to lead Quincy College in an interim capacity."

"My mission is to support the college, its students, staff, and faculty during this transitional period as the college works to appoint new leadership that will set the course for the college's future. Together, we will continue to move the college forward and build on all the hard work that the Quincy College community has embarked upon in recent months, to build a path to success for our students."

Asquino began his career in public higher education in 1971 as assistant to the president of the Massachusetts Board of Regional Community Colleges. He has also served in numerous administrative positions for the Massachusetts Board of Regional Community Colleges.

In addition, he serves as an officer and past chair of the United Way of North Central Massachusetts

Board of Directors, officer and past chair of the Boys & Girls Club of Fitchburg and Leominster and past chair of Greater Gardner and North Central Massachusetts Chambers of Commerce. He is a member and past chair of the Board of Trustees for Heywood Hospital, and the GFA Supervisory Board.

Asquino is the recipient of many community and national awards, including the Community Leader Award from the UMass Memorial-HealthAlliance Hospital Foundation; the Distinguished Citizen Award from the Nashua Valley Council Boy Scouts of America; the Dr. Robert H. Goldman Community Service Award; the Greater Gardner Chamber of Commerce Citizen of the Year and Community Service Awards; the Nashoba Valley Chamber of Commerce's Leadership Award; the Governor's Pride in Performance Award; Enterprise Bank's Celebration of Excellence Community Service Award; and the National Council for Marketing and Public Relations Pacesetter Award.

Asquino holds a Ph.D. and M.P.A. in public administration and political science and a B.A. in economics and political science from the University of Massachusetts Amherst and Southeastern Massachusetts University, now UMass Dartmouth. He has taught public administration at the high school and college levels, including at the baccalaureate, master's and doctoral levels.

Asquino replaces Michael Bellotti as the interim president of Quincy College. The board in October announced Bellotti, the former Norfolk County sheriff, would be leaving the school to become the president of ARK Behavioral Health Centers, which operates the Northeast Treatment Center in Quincy, by the end of the current semester.

READERS FORUM

Public Meeting Preceded School Committee Vote On New Learning Center

I was surprised to hear that Quincy Public Schools' proposed new Learning Center not being supported by Councillor Mahoney.

Indeed, elected officials can and should vote their conscience. However, it is vital that they get the facts correct before doing so. My colleague in government, Councillor-at-Large Anne Mahoney, said, in justifying not voting to support this project: "We didn't have a public meeting, we didn't hear from the public."

On Nov. 6th, there was a public meeting where close to 80 individuals had a chance to ask questions, offer suggestions, and tour the site. Massachusetts General Law 603-28(07) stipulates that each school district shall create a districtwide Parent Advisory Council (PAC) offering membership to all parents of eligible students and other interested parties. The PAC's duties, by regulation, include participation in the planning, development, and evaluation of the school district's special education programs. Quincy Public Schools has had a longstanding committed PAC, and the PAC, with the Citywide PTO, planned and ran that meeting. The school district also solicited online feedback from the community and has worked to address those concerns and questions.

After careful consideration and review of the questions and feedback from those families most involved, the Quincy School Committee voted unanimously on Nov. 13th to strengthen and enhance the PAC's ability to participate in the planning of the proposed Learning Center. We also voiced our unanimous support for the project to move forward.

I know that Councillor Mahoney believes, as we do, that every student in Quincy should participate in the best possible education that we can provide. I am only sorry that, at the City Council meeting on Nov. 18th, she felt she was the only one concerned about public input and decided not to support this incredible opportunity to do the right thing for our children.

Schools Tackling Student Social Media Use

By TOM GORMAN

As the use of social media among young adults continues to increase, school officials are developing programs to help students understand its benefits and dangers.

During a recent school committee meeting, the district's health services improvement plan was presented by Coordinator of Health Services Rita Bailey and Senior Director of Student Support Services Maureen Papile. The plan outlines various programs, initiatives, and student healthcare statistics.

One new program, Be Well, features a grade 5 initiative on social media and its impact on student health and wellness.

"Most adolescents use social media to build on social communication and friendships taking place in school, at sporting events, or other activities and extend it to the online world," said Papile. "They're not necessarily meeting new people so much as enriching their current friendships."

According to Papile, social media can have a negative impact on teens, depending on the individual's personal perception of themselves.

"If students perceive themselves in a negative way, (such as) they perceive they don't have many friends, or they're being left out, then social media can have a negative impact even if it is not the reality of that child," she said.

Papile added that "things on social media aren't always as they appear."

"If a child doesn't see themselves as their peers in an idolized way, it can cause damage to their self-esteem and there lies the challenge," she said.

Cutting a child off from social media isn't always the answer.

"Barring teens from social media use could potentially deprive them of valuable learning experiences and limit their social lives," Papile said.

She cited recent research that shows the number of social media platforms used and how often they are used can impact mental health.

"The more social media platforms an adolescent uses, the more likely they are going to have symptoms of depression and anxiety," Papile said.

Papile said a recent study showed 91 percent of 16 to 24 year-olds use the internet for social networking and rates of anxiety and depression have increased 70 percent in the past 25 years.

"Social media use is a link to increased rates of anxiety and depression in students," she said.

Papile said that "Facebook Anxiety" is real, citing an American Academy of Pediatrics' study.

"It's defined as when teens and preteens spend time on social media sites and begin to exhibit classic symptoms of depression due to the intensity of the online world," she said. "Factors contributing to making kids feel inadequate are Facebook's in-your-face friend tally, status updates and pictures of others having a good time."

Another study, Papile said, found that some young adults saw themselves as socially isolated.

"Their world is online," she said. "Just because they feel they lack friends doesn't mean they do."

According to Papile, studies have also found social media having an impact on teens' self-image.

"Greater Instagram use has been associated with greater self-objectification and concern about body image," she said.

Papile said the part of the Grade 5 Be Well program will be focused on helping students deal with social media use and that it doesn't always reflect real life.

"There will be educational opportunities with academic teachers that will provide a lesson on the reality of social media," she said. "Guidance counselors will focus on kids doing a self-assessment on social media use and physical education staff will show students ways to incorporate exercise and physical activity as an alternative."

Bailey said that last year, officials spearheaded programs focused on social media. A professional development program for the district's wellness team members targeted the impact of social media and how it relates to a child's emotional health, self-image and social development.

"The wellness team brought these important concepts back to their school for all their students," she said. "All staff members support the students in developing healthy interactions with each other as well as communicating the importance of a positive self-image."

Bailey said there have been multiple initiatives including presentations on cyber bullying, child screen time for preschool parents, and "Unplug, Wipeout Cell-phone Day."

Some individual school programs included the Clifford Marshall School holding a "Think Big Thursday" where students who presented a parent confirmation that they didn't watch TV or use a cellphone or computer for a day received a prize. North Quincy High School SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) produced a video on social media myths, "Think Before You Post," and the Quincy High School wellness team developed an initiative, "Think, Work, Share" - Think before you post, work to balance real life and school life, and share your best self.

Other initiatives in the health service plan for this year include a focus on anxiety and how teachers can recognize and help students develop coping skills.

"Anxiety is the most prevalent mental illness in America particularly among our youth," said Bailey.

Another is the health services team supporting LGBTQ students where Bailey said nurses and staff will work to "understand the diverse gender orientations and recognize harassment and support school inclusive culture."

This year, the "Roots and Wings" student peer mentoring program that was piloted last year at North Quincy High School is being expanded to Quincy High. Also this year, the SADD (Students Against Destructive Decisions) summit will include middle school students and the FLASH (Family Life and Sexual Health) program was implemented for grade 10.

Bailey said the state-sponsored Big Smiles program where a dentist, hygienist, and dental assistant provide dental exams, cleanings, fillings and extractions, will be visiting all the district's schools this year.

According to Bailey, the district's school nurses last year treated 101,819 students including 2,625 with particular health needs. There was a nearly 95 percent student return rate to class after being seen by nurses. She noted that student visits to the nurses' offices increased by 20 percent last year.

Bailey reported there was a decrease in the number of concussions last year and attributed it to better preventative education.

She noted that 87 staff members are certified in CPR and AED. Committee member Paul Bregoli suggested that all staff members be required to be certified.

Papile said that other Be Well initiatives include encouraging students to make healthy choices, using the school community to reinforce school engagement, setting personal goals, and empowering students to make change through education.

Eagle Scout Spruces Up QCA Recess Yard

THE STUDENTS OF Quincy Catholic Academy were excited Monday morning, Nov. 4, when they arrived at school to see the amazing transformation of their recess yard. Jack Moriarty, Class of 2017 and currently a student at Archbishop Williams, completed his Eagle Scout project by creating amazing games for the QCA students and brightening up the space by painting the fence. It looks incredible and the students love all the games. The school is very proud of Jack and grateful for his gift to Quincy Catholic Academy. # 87TH CITY FOOTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Quincy Presidents vs. North Quincy Red Raiders

Presidents, Raiders Ready For THE GAME

By TOM JOYCE

The biggest football game of the year for the City of Quincy is fast approaching.

On Thursday, Nov. 28 (10 a.m. start time), the city's two public high schools, the Quincy High Presidents (2-8) and the North Quincy High Red Raiders (3-7), will face off.

Since neither team made it to the playoffs this season, both coaches indicated that this, effectively, is their championship game.

"This year, Thanksgiving is our playoff game," Red Raiders' head coach Ryan Craig said. "It's a big game for the city and you always play to win. We have a great group of seniors who play as hard as possible, so we owe it to them to go as hard as we can in their last one."

"We've got our hands full no doubt," Presidents' head coach Kevin Carey added. "They're a much better team than their record. They rally to the football on the defensive side very quickly. They're set up for success with great coaches. I expect them to continue what they're doing. They're in every ballgame. It's really going to be a dogfight. It's like no other rivalry, especially for eastern Massachusetts."

Offensively, the Presidents are a run-heavy team. They rely mostly upon Isaiah Steinberg, who has over 1,000 rushing yards on the season. However, in recent weeks, they have also given Jarod Walker more reps; he ran for over 100 yards in the team's win over Brookline earlier this month.

"I'm sure North is going to do what they can to shut down our running game because we haven't had much success in the air," Carey said. "We're a one-sided offense and we need to open that up a little more. It's hard when your team is moving the ball on the ground. How do you break away from it? We want to keep defenses honest, but against this defense we're really going to have to earn these yards."

In contrast, a strong point for the Red Raiders this season has been their run defense. This includes efforts in the trenches from Mike Gordon, Mike Levine, Brandon Baker, Harry Gaudiano and Josh Jackson and linebackers Jackson Zhao and Matt Craig, among others.

For coach Craig, one word came to describe the performances from his players up front in recent weeks. "Resilient," he said.

The power up front has been prevalent for the Red Raiders this month in two of their low-scoring games — like when they defeated Oliver Ames 12-7 on Nov. 1 and fell to Hopkinton 14-7 on Nov. 15. Against Hopkinton, the Red Raiders stuffed their opponent in the red zone twice, making big plays when Hopkinton was within striking distance of the end zone.

When they have the ball, the Red Raiders take a more balanced approach than the Presidents. For example, sophomore quarterback Cooper Hansen had 27 pass attempts in the team's 12-7 Nov. 1st victory over Oliver Ames. Surely the team does not always throw that often and when they do, they typically spread the ball out to an array of players. On the ground, they mix up their ball carriers as well; this can include Tyler Le, Josh Jackson, Matt Craig, Liam Hines and others.

Over the past few weeks, Quincy and North Quincy have dealt with their share of injuries on the field, requiring various players to step up and fill in bigger roles.

In Quincy's 46-23 win over Brookline earlier this month, for example, Riley O'Connell filled in at guard for an injured Thomas Le and excelled as the team ran for nearly 400 yards. Even so, as a senior captain and two-way starter (guard on offense and linebacker on defense) not having the three-year varsity player was a challenge.

For both sides, this marks the final game for members of each respective senior class; the Red Raiders have 10 seniors on their team this season and the Presidents have 16.

For the Red Raiders, the senior class includes: running back/defensive back Shane O'Connell, tight end/linebacker Raymond Chau, wide receiver/defensive back Andrew Gott, running back/defensive end Josh Jackson, running backs/linebackers Tony Nguyen and Brian Rodrigues, offensive lineman/linebacker

The Presidents seniors this season are wide receivers/defensive backs Michael Scibilio, Lukas Schaff, Milo Santangelo, Kevin Gallant and Jordan Wu, running back/linebacker Shane Murphy, wide receiver/linebacker Trenton Souza, running back/defensive end Michael Cugini, offensive lineman/linebacker Thomas Le, offensive linemen/defensive linemen James Corkery, Tyler Ralls, Matthew McInnis, Eddie Lei and Kevin Ferent as well as wide receivers/defensive ends Derek Little and Devante Williams.

The Red Raiders team captains are Andrew Gott, Jackson Zhao and Mike Levine; the Presidents captains are Shane Murphy, Michael Cugini, Thomas Le and Derek Little.

"It's emotional," Carey said of his seniors' final game. "They've seen teams in the past go through it. A lot of them have been part of this game before, so they know the routine. It's the last game. It's the biggest show in town. It does attract a lot of attention. If the kids are at a store and have their jacket on, people are going to ask them, 'How are you going to do against North Quincy?' People around the community know how big this is. My seniors are ready, my juniors are ready and sophomores who are playing are ready too."

Of the rivalry aspect of the game, he added, "It's wonderful. There are not many like it. There are not many towns or cities where you have two high schools competing on Thanksgiving. I think that makes it that much more of a game of pride. It matters to the kids on both teams. They take it with a lot of passion. It happens in the blink of an eye, so I tell the kids to soak it all in because just after noontime for the seniors on November 28, it's all gone in a flash. I wish everybody the best of health as we get ready for another rivalry game."

QHS Grad Nicole Jorgensen Thriving With URI Basketball

By TOM JOYCE

It's a different school and a different level of play, but Nicole Jorgensen is still a standout basketball player.

The 2016 Quincy High graduate excelled on the court for the Presidents. The same could be said for the 6-foot-5 center in 2019, now a senior on the University of Rhode Island women's basketball team (NCAA Division I).

At Quincy High, Jorgensen might be best remembered for setting both the single-season points (507) and rebounds records (384). A four-year letterman, she finished her career with 1,274 points and 1,159 rebounds, the latter of which stands as a school record; she became the first player in school history to reach over 1,000 in both categories.

On Nov. 10 this year, she reached one of those milestones at the NCAA level. In a 68-56 win over Hartford, URI's second game of the regular season, Jorgensen scored the 1,000th point of her collegiate career.

"Honestly, it was hard because the competition is a lot different compared to high school," she said of the achievement. "It was a milestone in my career I was really happy to get, but I was more so happy with the win we got."

NICOLE JORGENSEN

From the start of her NCAA career, Jorgensen has been a key contributor to her team. Primarily a bench player as a freshman, she took over the starting role late in the season and earned Atlantic 10 Rookie of the Week in back-to-back weeks in late February.

"When I came in my freshman year, it wasn't handed to me," she said of a starting role. "I had to work for the time I got and had to prove myself as a rookie. I decided it was my turn to start to step up and they looked up to me on the court and I embraced it."

She kept that starting job as a sophomore and continued to shine as a junior. Before this season and last season, she earned Atlantic 10 Preseason Third Team honors. As a junior, she averaged 13.2 points per game with 7.7 rebounds and 1.6 blocks.

This year, she is aiming higher; it's her goal to earn a spot on the Atlantic 10 All-Conference First Team at the end of the season.

Even though Jorgensen is one of the top players in her conference, her team did not have the best results in her first three seasons. URI went 17-71; of those three seasons, the team's top performance came last year when they went 8-21.

However, momentum could change this season as they won two of their first three contests to start the year.

Jorgensen said part of the team's early success is thanks to its new coaching staff led by former WNBA player Tammi Reiss, who took the job last April.

"It's honestly the best thing for the program," she said. "They're very flexible. They know the players they have and use us in the positions we are capable of being used in. The plays on

'Pigskin Gala' XXXII Thursday Morning At Pageant Field

Sean 'Chooch' Halpin To Be Honored At Tailgate

The "Pigskin Gala" returns to Pageant Field in glorious red, white and blue, bacon-flavored American fashion on Thanksgiving Day.

It's a free public tailgate party that precedes the annual Quincy-North Quincy football game and raises funds for the children of both high schools. All football fans are welcome to attend.

Dubbed "America's Greatest High School Football Tailgate Party," the Pigskin Gala annually attracts hundreds of guests from both sides of the city and celebrates its 32nd year here in 2019.

Pigskin Gala XXXII kicks off at 6 a.m. Thanksgiving morning and ends at 10 a.m. so that guests may attend the start of the 87th annual Quincy-North Quincy football game. The gala will include appearances by the Quincy and North Quincy cheerleading squads and a performance by teenage bagpiper Patrick Sullivan, the son of Quincy High School Class of 1988 graduates Dan and Keri (Mortimer) Sullivan.

The Pigskin Gala this year will honor Quincy's very first Football Man of the Year, dedicated to the person who goes above and beyond the call of duty to promote the game of football in the city. The debut award goes to Sean "Chooch" Halpin, a 1994 North Quincy high school graduate and starting middle linebacker on the Red Raiders 1992 Super Bowl champion team. For many years, Halpin has selflessly volunteered countless hours, dollars and many years to youth football in the city.

"We're delighted to honor Chooch Halpin for his dedication to the game, to welcome many friends new and old to the party, and to celebrate our city and the great tradition of Thanksgiving Day football here in Massachusetts," said Pigskin Gala co-founders Robert Buttomer and Kerry Byrne, both members of the Quincy High School Class of 1988.

Food this year will be provided by Quincy newcomer Chef Todd Noon of Bonez Brothers Barbecue on Southern Artery. Noon is a Florida native who is donating his time to the event.

The free football feast includes pulled pork, biscuits and brisket gravy, eggs, bacon, home fries and its traditional handmade smoky venison sausage — a culinary homage to the original Thanksgiving in 1621 where venison was served — plus turkey hash provided by celebrity chef and Food Network star Jay Hajj of Mike's City Diner in Boston's South End. Longtime Quincy resident Paul Desmond donates his time to lead the volunteer staff.

The Pigskin Gala is funded each year by local businesses. Pigskin Gala XXXII here in 2019 is sponsored by The Boston Cannons, Joe Cardarelli of Cardarelli Plumbing, Mike Boyce of Commonwealth Elevator, Mike and Tim Flavin of Flavin and Flavin Insurance, FoxRock Properties, Andrian Shapiro and LBC Boston, Finbarr O'Connor of J.F. Roofing, Noel Bowler of The Irish Pub, Adams Shore native George Pepdjonovic of Maggy's Lounge, the Rotary Club of Quincy led by President Patrick McDermott, Sean Conroy of Southside Tees, Howie and Happy Jacobs of Toodie's Fine Jewelry, and founding sponsor and North Quincy High School alum Alex Kesaris of Braintree Brewhouse. Kesaris is responsible for turning the Pigskin Gala into an event that now benefits the children of Quincy.

The Pigskin Gala host committee donated $2,000 to the Quincy-North Quincy band program in 2017 and donated $2,200 to the Quincy and North Quincy cheerleading squads in 2018. Proceeds from the event this year will benefit the Quincy-North Quincy wrestling program.

Quincy's Cowham Concludes Record-Breaking Career At MIT

Jeremy Cowham, son of Holly Rendle and Walter Cowham of Quincy, recently completed a distinguished four-year soccer career at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Cowham earned the starting goalkeeping position during his freshman season in 2016, and has played every game since, with the exception of three games during his junior year when he was injured. Clocking over 5,000 career minutes between the pipes for the Engineers, Cowham broke several records at the institution, some of which had stood for over 50 years.

Cowham holds the all-time university records for fewest goals in a season (5) and lowest goals-against average (.37). He also appears in the record books for career shutouts (17) and save percentage (.814). In the competitive NEWMAC league, Cowham was selected for both Academic All-Conference (based on GPA) and First Team All-Conference (based on athletic performance).

Growing up in Dorchester then Quincy, Cowham participated in Quincy Youth Soccer, AFC and Sacred Heart basketball programs. He later played goalkeeper for FC Boston Bolts and at Milton Academy, where in his senior season he contributed to a 21-0 record, 19 consecutive shutouts, a New England Prep School Athletic Conference championship, and a ranking as the #1 high school soccer team in the USA.

A computer science and electrical engineering major with a minor in management at the Sloan School, Cowham is currently interviewing for jobs in the tech sector as well as exploring the possibility of graduate school. In addition to being a varsity athlete at MIT, he is also an undergraduate researcher, co-head of the improv troupe, and vice president of the Minority Business Association.

our offense and defense are based on players and not just the system. It's eye-opening to have such a new and fresh start. It's like we're freshmen again, but we're off to a good start."

As one of just three seniors on her team's roster this season, Jorgensen embraces her role as one of the team's leaders.

"I take it to heart a lot," she said. "When I was a freshman, I had girls who did that to me and I communicate with them on a near daily basis. They're people I still look up to and am still afraid of. I listen to them. Not that I want the freshmen to be afraid of me, but I want to be someone they look up to."

Although basketball is her full-time sport now, Jorgensen excelled at several during her career with the Presidents. Not only was she a four-year varsity basketball player, she was a Patriot League All-Star in both volleyball and outdoor track and field. In track, she was an Eastern Mass. Division 1 state champion javelin thrower in 2016; her top throw was 125 feet, five inches. And before taking up outdoor track as a senior, she was a varsity softball player.

Jorgensen said playing a sport every season in high school helped her adjust to the rigors of Div. 1 athletics.

"It definitely made the transition a lot easier," she said. "It was all year-round. I had time where I could do things other than sports, but that's what I chose to do because it was my passion. It paid off here because it's the exact same thing I'm doing now, but now it's just one sport."

Jorgensen also comes from an athletic family. Her three brothers, Ian, Alex and Curran, all played high school football. Curran went on to play wide receiver and quarterback at Bridgewater State and Mass Maritime while Ian was a starting tight end for the Div. 1 UMass Minutemen.

"Growing up with them everything was competition," she said. "We fought for food. We had different games in the backyard. They're my motivation to be the player I am today. Every time I step on that court I play for my family and I hope that I can perform in a way that will make them proud."

the assisted living facility's cook. A total of 60 pies were baked.

"The Brookdale residents wanted to give back to the firefighters of Quincy who do so much for them and the whole community, so, they got together and decided to bring them apple pies," said Brookdale Activity Director Cindy Bondi. "At Thanksgiving we show our thanks by giving these pies to them."

Their first stop was fire headquarters on Quincy Avenue where 16 pies were delivered.

"Depending how many firefighters work at each station is how we determined how to distribute them," said Bondi.

Grenier placed several pies on his walker and others were carried into the firehouse by Brookdale officials Bondi, business development coordinator Joan Reid, and the van driver who accompanied the residents. Firefighters gathered inside the main bay to greet the residents as they arrived and offered appreciation for their thoughtful gift.

"It's great when we have community interaction and their coming out appreciating the job we do on a day to day basis," said Firefighter Paul Moody.

Bondi and Reid said the residents enjoy traveling around the city delivering the pies and meeting the firefighters.

"Our residents love getting out into the community," she said.

Added Reid, "They got a big kick out of visiting all the firehouses."

Bondi said that Brookdale and the residents were pleased to show the firefighters a token of appreciation.

"Who doesn't like apple pie?" she asked.

Twins Donate Comfort Toy Dogs To Quincy Police

be carried by officers to be given to a child in crisis.

The Anderson family visited the Quincy Police station on Thursday, Nov. 14 where Chief Paul Keenan accepted the cuddly stuffed toys, called Trouble the Dog, on behalf of the department. The toys are part of the "Trouble on the Scene" initiative of a Marblehead non-profit, The Kennek Foundation, which aims to provide all first responders with a resource to help children deal with a traumatic incident.

"This is awesome," said Keenan. "We run into kids in need that are traumatized and challenged, so I think this will make their day a little brighter and in whatever situation they are in, hopefully it will make it a little easier for them."

The Andersons developed a special bond with the Quincy Police Marine Unit and K9 officers through their frequent trips to Boston. The Quincy officers invited the family on the police boat and had them meet K9 Officer Kent Yee and his dog, Mochi. Caleb wants to be a K9 officer when he grows up.

"Our officers reached out to them and kind of adopted them as family," Keenan said. "Every time they come back here, they meet up with our officers."

The chief praised the twins' efforts to help other children in need.

"It's a selfless act on their behalf," he said. "They're just a really nice family that's going through some medical issues. We're just so glad they chose Quincy."

Sue Anderson said her children were first introduced to Trouble the Dog by a Virginia police officer in August. This inspired them to want to give back and begin a fundraising effort to raise $500 to purchase the stuffed animals.

"Kaitlyn made bracelets (to sell) and we hoped to have enough (funds) to buy 13 Troubles," said Sue. "Within a week, we surpassed that 13."

Caleb and Kaitlyn donated the first set of the stuffed dogs to the Virginia police and the second group was given to Quincy.

The twins then set off to raise money to buy bullet-proof vests for police dogs.

"Caleb said that if a police officer needs a vest, their dog needs a vest," Sue Anderson said.

The pair donated one vest for their hometown police department and now have enough funds to purchase two more.

The youngsters have taken a break from fundraising, but plan to start up a bigger campaign next month to spread Trouble the Dog throughout their state.

"We want to get Trouble started in Indiana," said Sue.

The twins' mother added that she is proud to support her children in their effort.

"When our kids want to do something and want to give back, how as a parent can you not stand beside them and do it?" she asked.

Sue Anderson also expressed appreciation to those who support her family.

"We are just been blessed that we had opportunities and generous people to support them and give back to the department that means so much to us," she said.

She also explained her family comes to Boston for Caleb's medical treatments every four weeks and was introduced to several Quincy marine and K9 officers with whom they quickly bonded.

"Every time we are in town, they have us follow them around and do training with them and take us out on the boat," Sue Anderson said. "They just really gave us a family away from home. To be able to donate to a department that has given us so much is very special."

Sheila Duncan, founder of The Kennek Foundation, said Trouble the Dog was inspired a few years ago by her 12-year-old niece who wanted to provide comfort to others in her family that were dealing with medical issues.

"She was doodling one day and drew Trouble the Dog," she said. "It was a divinely inspired moment."

The Trouble on the Scene program was born and the drawing served as the model for the stuffed puppy that has quickly caught on as a comfort toy for children experiencing "trouble" in their lives.

KENNEK FOUNDATION founder Sheila Duncan explains how Trouble the Dog helps children in crisis as Kaitlyn Anderson looks on.

"We're bringing the program across the country," Duncan said. "We're getting an unbelievable feedback from the police departments. They keep telling us to 'get us more.'"

She said her foundation's goal is to get as many Trouble the Dogs in as many first responders' vehicles as possible to be readily available for children to help calm them during an incident such as a fire, an accident, or a domestic situation. The children can keep the stuffed toy that serves as a coping or therapy "dog" providing them a sense of safety and comfort.

A book, "Here's Trouble," accompanies the stuffed animals that tells the story of hope and resilience.

"We call Trouble the Dog an angel in disguise, because they are," Duncan said.

During the presentation, Kaitlyn couldn't resist hugging one of the stuffed dogs.

"They're so cuddly," she said.

Gloria Watkins

A Christian funeral for Gloria Dittich Watkins will be held Dec. 1 at 3 p.m. in the South Weymouth Church of the Nazarene, with a reception for guests to greet the family immediately following.

Mrs. Watkins was born Jan. 21, 1926, and died Nov. 19 after a long battle with Alzheimer's.

She was born in Garfield, NJ and attended Eastside High School in Paterson, NJ. Upon graduation, she attended Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, where she graduated in 1948 with a bachelor's degree in education. On June 2 of that year, she married Lawrence Watkins and moved to his home state of Ohio.

Mrs. Watkins' family started in Cleveland, OH where Susan was born, and continued in Farmington where Amy was born. It was there in Farmington that Mrs. Watkins taught kindergarten and first grade until her retirement in the mid 1980s. It was unusual during that era for women to hold jobs outside the home, but she was not deterred — her calling was to teach children and she loved doing that.

With her husband Larry, a school principal, the family spent their summers off traveling and vacationing across the country. From cabins in Maine and Vermont, to camping and cross-country travel including Canada, these vacations became the most anticipated time of the year. Later in life Mrs. Watkins traveled with Larry to England and Ireland along with her sister and brother-in-law, Betty and Arthur Hughes. These trips most often included extended Watkins and Hughes families, and are still the discussion of family gatherings today. Their daughters (and grandchildren) inherited the love of travel, and have visited most of the US states, Canadian provinces, and many world countries.

After her death, many former students have posted on social media: "Mrs. Watkins was my first-grade teacher, and forever a favorite (even if she got my ankle once with her ruler)," "Mrs. Watkins always told us to take off our coats in winter so that when we went back out they'd be warm," "Mrs. Watkins touched many lives and will be missed," "Mrs. Watkins will forever be my favorite teacher!"

At home, Mrs. Watkins was an accomplished seamstress. She enjoyed general sewing and cross-stitching, but her joy was making night gowns and pajamas for the family Christmas gifts. And her Slovak ethnicity led to creating and preparing some of the dishes that remain family favorites today — hot dogs and green peppers, potato soup, latkes, beef stew, and a special collection of Christmas cookies.

She was a member of the South Weymouth Church of the Nazarene at the time of her death. Prior to that she held memberships at Augusta (ME) First Church of the Nazarene, Champion (OH) Church of the Nazarene (where they were founding members), and Bolindale

(OH) Church of the Nazarene. She along with her husband Larry were lifelong members of Nazarene churches, always supporting and praying for their pastors and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Lawrence Watkins, on Feb. 5, 2009; also by her sister, Betty Hughes and her husband, Arthur Hughes, in 2016. She is survived by her daughter Susan Watkins, Quincy, daughter Amy Watkins Barnard and her husband Rev. Bruce Barnard of New York, NY, granddaughter Elizabeth Barnard of Nashville, TN, and grandson Dr. David Barnard of Philadelphia, PA. She is also survived by her half-sister Doris Campbell, half-brother John DeLeo, and stepsister Marjorie McCallum.

The family would like to extend their grateful thanks to the staff and volunteers at Sunrise of Braintree where Mrs. Watkins spent her last years and Ascend Hospice who cared for her these past months. The aides and staff made her days enjoyable, and she was able to have visits with family and friends (and family pets).

Interment at Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne, Dec. 2 at 11 a.m.

Funeral arrangements were made by Hamel-Lydon Chapel & Cremation Service of Massachusetts, 650 Hancock St., Quincy.

Memorial donations may be made to Eastern Nazarene College, Class of 1948 Scholarship Fund, at ECAS Class of 1948.

As a man of faith, he was a lifelong active member of St. John the Baptist Parish in Quincy. He was an avid New England Patriots fan, enjoyed gardening and working around his home.

Most of all, his passion was for his family. Mr. DelVecchio loved family gatherings, Sunday dinners and supporting the many activities and accomplishments of his many much-loved grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Coming Home

girlfriends shared after college.

As a realtor, it is very important to be mindful, empathetic and sensitive to these things. You have no idea how hard it is to leave a place that you called home for so long. So much goes on in these walls and behind closed doors. The most important work you do in your whole life will be inside those four walls.

The month of November gives us two holidays to be extra thankful, one being Thanksgiving of course and the other Veterans Day. It's a time to be grateful and thankful for what we have. To be able to live in a free country, in a state that offers so much, and in a city with a mayor that is dedicated to the improvement of the city and its citizens.

The City of Quincy has one of the most historical Thanksgiving Day football games with a rivalry like no other. This football game is a chance to see and reunite with those that have "come home" for Thanksgiving. It's more than a football game, it's hitting the button on a time machine, going back to Quincy High or going back to North Quincy High and giving us another chance to live out some of the best years of our lives over a two hour time frame.

I know that is something that I will always be grateful for and have attended for 20 years since graduation and plan to attend for the rest of my life even if I am no longer a Quincy resident because no matter where I move to, how far I may roam, to me, Quincy will always be my "coming home."

A Job Well Done

Signs of a Scam: It is rare but scammers may pose as census takers to obtain your personal information and then use it to commit identity theft and other frauds. To prevent this, be sure that you are talking to an official census taker. They must have and show a photo ID with the U.S. Department of Commerce seal and an expiration date. If you ask, the census taker will give you a supervisor's contact information and/or the census regional office phone number for verification. The Census Bureau will never ask for your full Social Security number, bank account or credit card numbers, money or donations, or anything on behalf of a political party. The 2020 Census will not ask citizenship status. The Census Bureau may call you as part of their follow-up and quality control efforts. They also might call if you're not home when a census taker stops by or when a personal visit is not convenient. Calls will come from one of the Census Bureau's contact centers or from a field representative. Caller ID can also be fraudulent, with software to show a false calling number, so it is best to know the actual number and make a call if you have concerns.

There are two Contact Centers, one in Jeffersonville, Indiana and Tucson, Arizona. The caller will identify themselves and the name of the survey. If they are unable to reach you, they will leave a message with a case ID number for your survey. The recognizable numbers are:

- (812) 218-3144, Jeffersonville Contact Center
- (520) 798-4152, Tucson Contact Center

If you receive a call and wish to independently verify that a number is from the Census Bureau, you can call one of the following numbers:

- 1-800-523-3205 Jeffersonville, IN
- 1-800-642-0469 Tucson, AZ
- 1-800-923-8282 Customer Service Center

If you suspect fraud, call 800-923-8282 to speak with a local Census Bureau representative. You also can file a report with the FTC at FTC.gov/Complaint.

ABOVE ALL, CALL "911" SO THAT THE POLICE CAN CHECK OUT THE SITUATION IMMEDIATELY

Downtown Construction Activities

Proposed work activities for the week of November 24th, 2019

- Paving of the top half of Cottage Avenue is scheduled for next week along with the installation of planters and the relocation of streetlights. As soon as the planters and streetlights are installed the sidewalks will be placed with concrete. Access to Cottage Avenue will be limited between 7am and 3pm during the days.
- Curbing work on Revere road continues for the new alignment and for the new left turn lane.
- MassDOT is continuing with the east retaining wall along Burgin Parkway between Walter Hannon Parkway and Granite Street. Caisson work for the support of the bridge deck on Burgin Parkway will be taking place within the next couple of weeks.
- Installation of a water quality unit and associated piping will be installed on Hancock Street at the intersection of Cottage Avenue. Both lanes of traffic on Hancock Street will be shifting to the west side.
- The façade work on the atrium has begun and is expected to take approximately one to two weeks to complete.

(The photos above are from Cottage Avenue with the one on the left taken six years ago and the one on the right taken today. Cottage Avenue has been transformed from a narrow one-way street with parking on one side to a two-way street on the top half with parking on both sides. The widening also gives you a view of the new civic space and future pocket park which be next to the new 15-story Chestnut Place building. The widening of the top half of Cottage Avenue will allow vehicles exiting the new garage to either exit towards Hancock Street or exit towards Chestnut Street/Dennis Ryan Parkway.)

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) There could be an unexpected change in plans for your upcoming holiday travels. But keep in mind that a little flexibility goes a long way in resolving any disappointments.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new relationship might not be responding quite as quickly as you'd hoped. Could you be expecting too much too soon? Try to ease up and let things happen at their own pace.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) As we approach the frenetic pace of pre-holiday planning, take time out now to reconnect with the wonderful people who share your life, especially the one who also shares your dreams.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A misunderstanding should be resolved before you get caught up in the flurry of holiday preparations. Set your pride aside and deal with it, regardless of who might have hurt whom first.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Being told that a colleague might have been trying to undercut your effectiveness might or might not be true. Get all the facts before you even think about acting on this so-called information.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) It's a good idea to start your holiday preparation plans early in order to avoid a time crunch if an unresolved workplace situation causes a problem. That old friend might have some welcome news.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family member's actions continue to surprise you, but this time with positive results. Could be your wise counsel finally got through. It's like having an early holiday gift, isn't it?

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your reluctance to act in a current situation could be traced to your inner self advising you to take more time to study its complexities before you attempt to deal with it. Good luck.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Soothing hurt feelings before they can ignite an angry outburst is the wise thing to do. And, of course, when it comes to doing the "wisdom thing," you do it so well.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Budget your time so that you can handle both your workplace duties and your personal holiday planning -- including travel arrangements -- without burning out on either end.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might find that you still need to firm up one or two of those still-outstanding decisions so that you finally can move forward as you had planned. Weigh the facts, then act.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You usually don't carry grudges, but you might feel this is one time when you're justified in doing so. But aren't you spending too much energy holding onto it? Let it go and move on.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of using your quiet strength to persuade people to follow their better instincts and do the right thing.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- When "Avengers: Endgame" became the top-grossing film of all time, it showed old Hollywood how movie-going tastes have changed. Detractors consider "Endgame" merely a comic book movie, but Stephen McFeely, who co-wrote "Endgame" with Christopher Markus, asks, "Is 'The Silence of the Lambs' just a serial-killer movie, or 'Annie Hall' just a romantic comedy and 'The Godfather' a mob movie?" Martin Scorsese and Francis Ford Coppola have been speaking out in opposition to big-budget comic book cinema. Scorsese admitted, "I don't see them. I tried, you know? But that's not cinema. It isn't the cinema of human beings trying to convey emotional, psychological experiences to another human being. It's something else, we shouldn't be invaded by it." He called on theater owners to "step up" to prevent Marvel movies from pushing narrative films out of theaters. Coppola, while accepting an award in Italy, defended Scorsese's argument, "He's right because we expect to learn something from cinema, get enlightenment, knowledge and inspiration. Martin was being kind when he said 'It's not cinema.' He didn't say it's despicable, which I just say it is." The other side has fired back, Markus defended his film with, "Not to pat ourselves on the back, but we snuck an hourlong movie about loss and grief into the biggest movie of all time." Taika Waititi, a writer/director for the Marvel Cinematic Universe added: "It's kind of a form of ignorance to say comic-book and graphic novels aren't art. They have life-changing stories of emotion, they're cinematic. No one is comparing 'Antman' to 'Citizen Kane,' however, as 'Doctor Strange' director Scott Derrickson tweeted, 'Nobody should dismiss movies they haven't seen!'" The times they are a changing!

Clint Eastwood has starred in 53 films, produced 36 films and just completed directing his 39th film, "Richard Jewell." It's about the security guard who saved lives at the bombing of the Centennial Olympic Park at the 1996 Olympics in Atlanta only to become a suspect himself. Eastwood turns 90 in May and is showing no signs of slowing down. Clint's son, Scott, has a ways to go to catch up to his dad, having just completed his 28th film (since 2006), "The Manuscript," directed by Nick Cassavetes and starring Jamie Foxx and Jean Reno, for a Jan. 1 release.

Here's a new low in creepy ... producers are using a CGI version of James Dean as the star of their upcoming Vietnam War/action/drama, "Finding Jack." Dean died in a car crash in 1955, after making only three films. They're aiming for Veterans Day 2020 to open, and say it would be Dean's fourth film. Would he want to go forth in CGI?

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Mermaid Lamp--- Mermaids and mermen have been "seen" and pictured since the Babylonian era. In past centuries, Greece, Japan, Ireland, Russia and Scotland have believed in local mermaids. There have been exhibits of mermaid skeletons; the 1837 Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, "The Little Mermaid"; the 1989 Disney movie adaptation of "The Little Mermaid" starring Ariel; and a fake documentary on television in 2012. In the 19th century, mermaids were part beautiful long-haired women and part fish, with a fish tail instead of legs. Collectors look for stories and art about mermaids and other legendary creatures like elves, the Abominable Snowman or the Loch Ness monster.

A hanging lamp from the 19th century with a carved mermaid, dressed in fashionable clothing and a feathered hat, was auctioned recently by Garth's. She was holding two light fixtures with glass shades. The fixture, suspended on three decorated chains, sold for $1,500.

Q: I have inherited my great aunt's silver tea service and tray. She was married in 1910. The silver has been worn down so much that it's no longer usable and the insides of the coffee and tea urns are black. I tried using Alka-Seltzer to clean the inside, but it didn't do anything. I'd love to have the pieces replated and put back into usable condition, but don't want to lose the details in the process. Is it worth it to have them replated?

A: Replating the silver will not cause it to lose the details, but it is expensive. Before you decide to have the tea service replated, try using silver polish and vigorously rubbing it on. The polish won't clean where there isn't any silver, and it will show what needs to be replated. Look for someone in your area who does silver plating and ask if he or she has sales when prices are marked down. The replater also should be able to clean the inside of the urns.

Q: I found a snow leopard skin in an antique suitcase in my father's attic. The skin probably is around 100 years old, but is in perfect condition. What should I do with it? What is it worth? Who would want it -- a museum or a Russian supermodel?

A: It's too old for the Russian supermodel, but it could sell at an auction. Snow leopard skin rugs sold at auction for $550 to $1,100 plus buyer's premium several years ago. If the skin has dried and is cracking, it will be much less valuable.

CURRENT PRICES

Sandwich glass, dish, Pekinese dog lid, opaque white, 1880, 4 inches, $60. Navajo Indian pipe, stag horn bowl and mouthpiece, leather and beaded shaft, 13 inches, $120. Dress, beaded sequin, black, flapper, art deco-style pattern, sleeveless, scoopneck, 1920s, size medium, 35 inch waist, $535.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Lebanese poet Kahlil Gibran who made the following sage observation: "I have learnt silence from the talkative, toleration from the intolerant, and kindness from the unkind; yet strange, I am ungrateful to these teachers."

* Those who study such things have determined that one out of every four alcoholic drinks consumed in the world has vodka in it.

* Famed actor Clark Gable, dubbed the King of Hollywood, was once a hobo.

* At some point you've almost certainly heard a coward described as "lily-livered," but did you ever wonder where that expression came from? It was once believed that the seat of courage in the human body was the liver; therefore, someone who was timid presumably lacked blood in the liver, causing that organ to become white.

* Every day more money is printed for Monopoly than for the U.S. Treasury.

* There once was a law in Marshalltown, Iowa, stating that it was illegal for a horse to eat a fire hydrant. And in Oregon, it was at one time illegal for a dead person to serve on a jury.

* Karaoke and karate: Other than the fact that they are both from Japan, you wouldn't think they have much in common. However, they both have the same root word, "kara," which means empty. "Oke" means "voice" and "te" means "hand;" hence, "karaoke" is "empty voice," and "karate" is "empty hand."

* Half of all Americans live within 50 miles of their birthplace.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* According to waste management company Republic Services, approximately 30% of what Americans place in their curbside recycling bins does not belong there, including greasy pizza boxes, wet cardboard, plastic bags, food-tainted materials, and even bowling balls and garden hoses. Meanwhile, only one in four plastic bottles is recycled.

* Paper lunch bags make excellent receptacle for cat litter waste. They are much more environmentally friendly than plastic bags, and can be folded down and placed directly into an outside trash can. The bags are easily stored near the litter box, because they lay flat.

* "Use a slotted spoon to separate eggs. The whites go through; the yolk does not." -- Y.E. in Utah

* Do you need to go to a fancy liquor store for simple syrup? No way! Simply mix equal parts sugar and water, bring to a simmer and store in the fridge in a covered jar. Use in drink recipes and to sweeten iced tea.

* "Wrap lint from your dryer in 6 inches of wax paper. Roll it up 1 inch on both ends and you have the perfect fire starter." -- M.K. in Michigan

* Scoop up this trick when cooking scallops: Refrigerate uncovered for about 30 minutes before they will hit the pan or grill. This will help to dry out the surface, giving you a good sear instead of a steam. Make sure your pan is hot, and don't leave the stove or grill, because scallops don't take more than 1 1/2 minutes per side.

Support Pouring In Following Houghs Neck Fire

Neighborhood Steps Up Following 3-Alarm Fire That Displaced Three Families At 207 Winthrop St.

By SCOTT JACKSON

The community is rallying together to support the residents displaced by a three-alarm fire that badly burned a Houghs Neck home late last week.

The Nov. 22 fire on Winthrop Street displaced the three households living on site, Ward 1 Councillor David McCarthy said Monday. Two of the displaced households were able to find temporary accommodations with family members, McCarthy said, and the third was able to work with the Quincy Housing Authority and the constituent services staff at City Hall to find temporary housing.

McCarthy said the neighborhood has come together to support those impacted by the fire.

"The Houghs Neck neighborhood stepped up," he said.

Two online fundraisers have been launched to benefit those affected by the fire, McCarthy said, and more than $10,000 had been donated as of Monday morning. In addition, items such as clothing, blankets and linens can be dropped off at the Houghs Neck fire station, located at 1082 Sea St. Donations will be accepted there for at least the next two weeks.

The fire broke out around 3:30 p.m. on Nov. 22 in the second floor of the three-family home at 207 Winthrop St. The house was a total loss.

A battery that was being charged inside the home at the time is being investigated as the cause of the fire.

One resident who was home at the time of the fire was taken to an area hospital with burns on his hands.

A single-family home on the same lot sustained water damage during the course of the Nov. 22 fire. The extent of damage to that structure was unknown on Monday.

McCarthy credited the Quincy Fire Department for its response to the Nov. 22 fire. The neighborhood, he explained, is tightly packed, and the fire could have easily spread given the windy conditions that evening.

"On a cold night with the wind whipping, we could have lost the whole neighborhood," he said. "The Fire Department did a tremendous job."

The councillor credited area residents for providing assistance to the residents displaced by the fire that night.

"All of the neighbors were terrific during the fire.

They brought everyone into their homes," McCarthy said. "The neighbors really stepped up."
